CV

Handwritten text in Arabic script, likely a manuscript or document. The text is dense and covers the entire width of the page. It appears to be a historical or religious text, possibly a letter or a treatise. The script is cursive and characteristic of the Ottoman or Persian periods. There are some large, stylized letters or symbols that might be part of a title or a specific section marker. The overall appearance is that of an aged, handwritten document.

1894-1895

Main body of handwritten text on the first page, consisting of several lines of script.

Handwritten marginal notes on the left side of the first page.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely Persian or Arabic, spanning the top half of the image. The text is densely written and appears to be a continuous passage. There are two large circular holes visible in the parchment, suggesting it was once bound in a book. The ink is dark and the parchment shows signs of age and wear.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely Persian or Arabic, spanning the bottom half of the image. This section continues the text from the top half, maintaining the same dense, flowing style. Like the top section, it contains two large circular holes, indicating its original position in a bound volume. The script is consistent throughout, with varying line heights and character shapes typical of historical cursive.

Handwritten manuscript page from the "Mushaf al-Furqan" (The Quran). The text is written in Arabic script, likely in Maghrebi or Andalusian style, on parchment. It features several large, ornate initial letters (Basmala) at the beginning of sections, decorated with red ink and gold leaf. The main body of text is written in black ink. There are two prominent circular holes punched through the parchment, one near the center and another towards the right edge. The handwriting is dense and fills most of the page.

Handwritten text in Burmese script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is written in a cursive style and covers the entire width of the strip. It appears to be a continuous narrative or record, possibly related to a royal decree or a historical event, given the formal nature of the script and the use of certain characters that may denote titles or specific administrative terms. The ink is dark, and the paper shows signs of age and wear.

Handwritten text in Burmese script, continuing the narrative or record from the top strip. This section also covers the full width of the strip and is written in a similar cursive style. The text is dense and fills the space between the lines, with some variations in the thickness of the strokes, suggesting a single scribe. The overall appearance is that of a well-preserved but aged historical document.

Handwritten text in Arabic script, likely a manuscript or document. The text is dense and covers the entire width of the page. It appears to be a historical or religious text, possibly a letter or a treatise. The script is cursive and characteristic of the Ottoman or Persian periods. There are some markings that look like dates or specific references, but they are difficult to decipher due to the cursive nature of the script. The text is written on a light-colored, possibly aged, paper.
